SUMMARY

Fedorchak T. DEVELOPMENT OF THE DEMOCRATIC JURAL STATE IN THE CZECH REPUBLIC

Author investigates establishment and development of the democratic and jural state in the Czech Republic in the context of transformation processes in the Central-Eastern Europe. It is especially emphasized that changes became possible due to the “velvet” revolution, destruction of the “party-state” system, adoption of democratic laws and perception and willingness of the society to execute them, banning of the Communist party members from taking the positions in government service, development of multi-party system, etc.
